Following for urgent comment, Thursday morning by phone, is Department's present thinking on fate of pending resolutions in Security Council.

1. Very important message venue of UN action in Security Council while private talks proceeding to SYG's auspices. Moving to GA would merely heat up political atmosphere and produce rash of well intentioned but unhelpful proposals from Neutrals.

2. You would be authorized to request U.S. resolution be put to vote if, in your judgment, this can be done without current Cuban crisis being immediately projected into GA as a result.

3. To accomplish this, a procedural resolution might be proposed subsequent to the veto of the U.S. draft, which would include following major elements:

a. Appeals to the parties concerned to meet urgently with the Secretary-General to consider ways of advancing a solution of the problem, thereby decreasing tension and serving the cause of world peace;

b. Requests the Secretary General to report back to the SC within specified time period on results their efforts;

c. Decides to reconvene immediately upon submission SYG's report to consider what further action should be taken.

Assume it would be preferable have such RES advanced by third party, such as Ireland, or by amendment of existing UAR-Ghana RES.
